The Utah Commission

Annual Report Made to the Interior Department.

AN INTERESTING DOCUMENT.

The Efforts of the Commission to Wipe Out and Extinguish Polygamy Has Been Attended With Good Results. Recommendations to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The annual report of the Utah commission has been received by Secretary Noble. This commission, under authority of congress has general supervision of the elections in the territory, and is particularly entrusted with the enforcement of the "Edmunds-Tucker" act in regard to polygamy. With but one exception the reports states there was no charge of fraud in the conduct of the election.

The commission, the report continues to say, has followed in the footsteps of the first Utah commission, which recognized the fact that congress in creating it desired it to use its best endeavors to wipe out and extinguish polygamy, and as far as possible all polygamous influences and tendencies. In obedience to this object the commission in appointing registrars of election, selected when possible those belonging to the non-Mormon element, always appointing a majority of the judges of election two out of three from the Gentile class. In some places however, there were no Gentiles to fill the positions, and in these cases Mormons were appointed. This course, the report says, has had the effect of decreasing the Mormon vote.

Touching the question of polygamy the report says: "Polygamy is not at the present time openly practiced except perhaps in a few remote and out-of-the-way places, but the non-Mormon element insists that plural marriages are solemnized clandestinely and practiced secretly in the larger centers and throughout the territory. This may or may not be true. This commission neither affirms or denies in the absence of positive evidence. Doubtless many members of the Mormon church never have practiced and never intend to practice polygamy, and perhaps many of them per se do not believe in the practice, but from the standpoint of their faith and creed, they accept it as a revelation from God, through the prophet, seer and Revelator Joseph Smith, ratified, confirmed, approved and practiced by their great president, Brigham Young, and that whoever desires to do so should have the right to comply with this ordinance of the church."

All laws forbidding the practice of polygamy, the report continues, the Mormon pronounces unconstitutional. There are grounds, it is stated, for belief, that polygamy is still taught by the church as a saving ordinance, and that those who practice it are assured of a higher exaltation in heaven than those who content themselves with one wife. Extracts are given from Mormon papers showing that they still openly advocate polygamy. That the teachings and practice of polygamy have not been discontinued is proven, the report says, by the fact that since Sept. 1, 1888, there have been in the territory of Utah 357 convictions for bigamy, adultery, fornication and unlawful cohabitation. Most of these convictions were for unlawful cohabitation; only two were for bigamy. If plural marriages are now celebrated, says the commission, it is done in the secret chambers of the temple. If polygamy is practiced it is with the secrecy with which the burglar guards his housebreaking and the thief his larcenies. Those who are convicted of polygamy, the report continues, regard themselves, and are regarded by the church as martyrs, and think it no disgrace at all to be sent to the penitentiary.

The courts are commanded for their vigilance and also for the mercy with which their mandates are tempered. The commission in view of the present condition of the territory as regards polygamy, does not think that Utah should be admitted as a state. Should it be, the commission says it would not be long before the gentile element, with its advanced civilization, its trade and its traffic would be driven from the territory and the Mormon theocracy be made supreme.

The commission makes a number of recommendations, among them: that jurisdiction of all polygamous and sexual offenses without regard to the place committed within the territory be conferred on district courts; that the term of imprisonment for unlawful cohabitation be extended to at least two years for the first and three years for the second offense; that it be made a penal offense for any woman to enter into marriage with any man, knowing him to have a wife living; that no person who refuses to take the oath that he is not a Mormon shall be permitted to locate on the public land; that congress pass laws for the government of the public schools of the territory. The commission also asks power for a new registration of the territory.

In regard to the public schools, the commission is especially solicitous, and says that the legislature of Utah for some time to come, can hardly "Be trusted to establish a system of free schools in sympathy with the enlightenment of the age."

In regard to immigration, the report says: "While we forbid the immigration of the non-proselyting, peace-loving docile Chinaman, because we fear a future danger from his coming, while we forbid the landing on our shores of contract laborers, because they cheapen wages of American-born citizens; and paupers, because they may became a burden, there is far greater reason for closing our doors as a nation and forbidding citizenship to the hordes who are brought here to swell the ranks of an organized body, which teaches them in advance to hate the government of the United States, denominates its executive, law-makers, judges and prosecutors, as persecutors and instills into every mind the constant teaching that their pretended revelations are more binding than the highest and best laws of the law, and that resistance to such laws is a virtue and a enduring of obedience to God. How far short of treason these teachings are, we leave those who can, to answer."

In concluding the commission says that congress should take no backward, or even wavering step, in the enforcement of the laws against polygamy. The report is signed by four of the five commissioners.

DISASTROUS RAILROAD WRECK.

A Number of Lives Lost on the New York Central Railway.

PALATINE BRIDGE, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The St. Louis express, No. 5, on the New York Central railway, which left Albany at 10 o'clock last night, met with a bad accident, about two miles east of here, about midnight. The first section broke down and stopped for repairs. The rear brakeman was sent back to signal the second section, but for some unknown reason failed to perform his duty. The engineer of the second section says he did not see him, and the first thing he saw was the light of the first section directly in his front.

The first section was made up of baggage, mail, express and three passenger cars, packed with people, and a Wagner sleeper on the end. The crash was terrific. The second section telescoped into the first section knocking out the lights and plunging everything into darkness.

Up to this hour four bodies have been taken out of the sleeper and it is feared the total number of deaths will run up to twenty-five and possibly more, as the car was full. It is difficult to get particulars at this hour.

Engineer Worth, of the second section, was so badly injured that he is not expected to survive. He resides in Albany.

Big Four Wreck.

GREENSBURG, Ind., Sept. 27.—Engine 206, tender, postal and baggage, and two day coaches were ditched, while running at fifty miles an hour, by an open switch at McCoy's six miles east of Greensburg, early Friday morning. The sleeper did not leave the track. The line is now open, a track having been laid around the wreck. Several of the train men and all the postal clerks were considerably shaken up. The passengers were unhurt.

It is almost certain that train wreckers are responsible for the accident.

Over an Embankment.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 28.—A train on the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad yesterday struck a cow and was thrown from the track about two miles from here. The engine and baggage car were carried down an embankment. Two persons were severely hurt, and nearly all those on the train were bruised and battered.

Strike at Rotterdam.

Doubts About the Success of the Dutch Dockers.

NOT LIKE THE LONDON STRIKE.

They Have No Cardinal Manning to Intercede for Them Like the Dock Laborers of London Had—Edison Honored—Other Foreign News.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—The course of the dockers' strike at Rotterdam is being watched here with great interest. The Socialists and labor agitators are confident that the same causes which led to the success of the London dockers' strike will bring victory to their Dutch brethren as well. Others are skeptical on this point. It is true that the Rotterdam strikers have John Burns, but they have not Cardinal Manning as yet, and it is doubtful whether as many city officials and influential citizens are in sympathy with the Rotterdam strikers, as was the case in regard to the London strikers.

The irritation caused in commercial circles by this new outbreak gives strength to the arguments of those who hold that the docks of every great city ought to be owned by the public, and administered at actual cost for the common benefit. If strikes of laborers occurred under such a system there would be no room for contention as to where the blame for the trouble lay, the plan of meagre profits on the part of the dock companies being eliminated from consideration. The increased value of dock facilities which comes from growth of commerce would, too, be then a public benefit, instead of accruing to private individuals as a part of what John Stuart Mill termed "unearned increment."

QUARREL ABOUT A WOMAN,

And One Assassinates the Other, Whereupon the Woman Takes Poison and Dies.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 28.—A sensational double tragedy is reported from York county. Some time ago Alfred Barnett and Allen Pettus, young white farmers, had a difficulty about a fast young woman which was not settled.

Last night the rivals met at a country church, when Pettus asked Barnett to walk with him into the woods to talk over the trouble. A few minutes afterward two shots were heard. An investigation disclosed the lifeless body of Barnett lying on the ground, with two wounds in the region of his heart. The murdered man was unarmed. Pettus was not to be found, and is still at large.

Carrie Block, the women about whom the men quarreled, upon being informed of the murder, went into hysteries, and, going to her room, swallowed the contents of an ounce bottle of laudanum, from the effects of which she died. A posse has gone in search of Pettus.

Two Car Loads of Powder Used.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 28.—One of the largest blasts ever made in the Lehigh Valley, was fired at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the Glendon Iron company's quarry, about two miles from Easton. Several tunnels, large enough for a man to crawl in and deposit powder, were made, work on which occupied several months. Two car loads of dynamite powder were used and touched off by electricity by a professor of Lafayette college. A large, rumbling noise followed, and down came thousands of tons of rock, without causing an accident or damaging the many buildings in the adjoining country section.

Each family will take up about one hundred acres of hitherto unoccupied state land. It is possible that a third colony may be established in the neighborhood of Corinto and Vershire, in Orange county.

In this condition the injured man lingered for several hours. He was married and had two children.

Business Indications.

A Bright and Favorable Outlook Predicted

FROM LEADING TRADE CENTERS.

Colder Weather Has Made Trade More Active Which Exceeds that of Last Year's at this Time—The Treasury Has Helped the Money Market by Over Two Million Dollars.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—R. G. Dun & Company's weekly review of trade says: Business indications this week are generally favorable. Throughout the northwest colder weather has made trade more active, and at the east improving manufactures and a heavy export trade stimulate business of all kinds.

The exports from New York for four weeks exceed last year's by 35 per cent., and a like gain elsewhere would mean an excess of exports over imports for the month approaching $9,000,000, for the increase in imports here has been but 3½ per cent. But that excess would not meet the month's allowance for interest, under valuations and freight charges, so that foreign exchange has advanced during the week half a cent. The Bank of England has raised its rate from 4 to 5 per cent., and that bank lost $855,000 specie for the week, the Bank of France also losing $2,275,000, and the Bank of Germany $2,124,000. These evidences of foreign demand, with the low state of reserves at New York, render the monetary future less clear, and the rates for money have advanced during the week fully one per cent. on call, with increasing caution in commercial loans.

The treasury has helped during the week by disbursing $2,100,000 more than it has taken in, and the reports from interior points all indicated an ample supply of money for legitimate needs and stringency. The demand has been more active at Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City and Milwaukee, but the supply is still sufficient, and the collections are, on the whole improving. The volume of business is a little below last years at Boston, St. Louis and a few smaller places, but generally much larger, the aggregate of bank clearings outside New York, showing a gain of nearly 7 per cent., only 6 per cent. at Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago taken together, but 11 per cent. at all other points.

Until Thursday the stock market had been comparatively inactive, though not declining. But a sharp advance has since appeared, putting the average of prices fully fifty cents higher than a week ago. The heavy earnings shown by the Pennsylvania in the monthly statement for August had some influence, and perhaps the withdrawal of one or two roads from the cut rate arrangement with the Burlington and Northern. But it is now announced that the Pennsylvania has reduced rates to St. Paul to meet the cut, and that the Wabash and some other western roads also join in the struggle, extending the low rate area. Reports of foreign buying of securities are circulated, but the market seems still mainly confined to professionals, though its advance should indicate stronger confidence as to the monetary future, and also as to early settlement of rates.

Manufactures are clearly improving. At Boston sales of wool have been 2,980,000 pounds for the week, with prices about steady, and the demand is more active. At Philadelphia manufacturers are also buying, though with caution. No present change is noted in the goods market, which, indeed, has been less active since the storm, but there is growing confidence that the business is going to improve. The demand for iron and steel still meets the very large supply, and the changes in price are all upward. Pig iron can still be had at $16.75 for southern and $17 for northern No. 1, and $16 for No. 2, but from $1 to $1.50 more is paid for prepared brands. Blooms have advanced $1; bar, plate and structural mills are busy, and while $29 is asked for rails at all eastern mills, and $30 quoted at Philadelphia, such prices are not yet established by considerable sales. At Pittsburg, $31.50 is quoted and at Chicago $33; the rise is from the lowest point has been $3 at the east, and $5 at the west. The scarcity of Manganese ore, which has risen $5 at Pittsburg, is an important element.

Coal is rather stronger, but the demand does not yet meet the supply. Copper has been a shade stronger abroad, but dull here at eleven cents for Lake, and the preparation to refine the large output by electrolytic process promises to greatly increase the supply of the better qualities. Wheat has risen two and three-eighths during the week on sales of 24,000,000 bushels, not because of larger foreign demand, but because the supplies coming from farms do not grade so well and are not so large as was expected. The price is low, at the best, but there is nothing as yet to modify the belief that the supply for the year will much exceed all demands. Corn has fallen over one-half cent and oats one-fourth cent with moderate trading.

The Liverpool cotton is threatened by general stoppage of mills and rapid movement from American plantations, port receipts thus far exceeding last years by 130,000 bales and exports by 54,000, and the price has declined three-sixteenth. Coffee is a quarter lower on sales of 312,000 bags, and oil one cent lower on small trading. Pork products are rather stronger, and butter two cents higher. The general tendency of prices is upward, though the advance for the week has been slight. But the signs of greater activity in all directions are encouraging, and the only unfavorable symptom is the uncertainty as to the monetary supply.

Business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number, for the United States 165, and for Canada 27, or a total of 192 as compared with a total of 198 last week, and 193 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures 220, representing 186 failures in the United States, and 34 in Canada.

High School Exercises.

An entertainment was given Friday afternoon, at the Central school building, by the scholars of the second year class of the High school. A number of recitations and essays were rendered in a very pleasing and interesting manner, which speaks well for the successful labors of Supt. Crouse and Miss Blair, and reflects credit on the scholars, who, judging by their meritorious selections, are progressing in a commendable manner.

The first selection was an essay by Miss Alice Hane, entitled "Traveling," which was an interesting history of the ancient and modern modes of traveling and gave an idea of the convenience which we now enjoy while traveling, unknown in ancient times, although almost as expensive then as at present. This was followed by a recitation by George Wyatt, "Sinking of the Cumberland," and an essay by Miss Bessie Thompson, "The White House," which was a pleasing story, beginning with its first mistress and ending with the palace of today. Then came a recitation by Miss Hattie Thompson, "Erin Abroad," and an essay by Will Wiant entitled "Boys." This was a masterpiece and was well received by the appreciative audience. Then came a recitation, "Slander," by Miss Clara L. Johnston, and an essay by Earl Kennedy, "The Mound Builders." Limited space will not permit of a detailed reference to the following pieces but suffice to say that all were delivered in good style. A recitation, "My Brother Yet," by Miss Grace Keller; an essay by Miss Ada Roberts, "Our School Days," a recitation, "My Friend's Secret," by George Christian; an essay, "Forests," by Miss Eva Dee; an essay by Tracy Allen, "Games;" a recitation "Where Shall the Emperor Set," by Emerson Fite; an essay, "Book," by Miss Flora Kowalke, "Character," a recitation by Chas. Elliot, an essay, "Lessons," by Miss Flora Gracely; a recitation by Miss Zoa King, an essay "Curiosity," by Miss Jessie Masden; a recitation "Perfection," by Miss Susie Langley, an essay "Spring Sports," by Miss Bessie McMurray; a recitation by Miss Ethel Clark, "Rory O'Moore," a recitation "The Fishers Cottage," by Miss May Roberts; a recitation by Miss Anna Wyatt "There is no Death," and a recitation "Kate Ketchum," by Miss May Porch.

The exercises were ended by the singing of a number of beautiful songs by the classes.

AN ADJOURNED SESSION

The Council Does a Little Extra Business at the Old Stand.

The city council devoted a couple hours to an adjourned session Friday night.

The first business was to change the time of holding regular sessions, Wednesday night being the most unsatisfactory one in relation to getting public advertisements in the "organ." So the night for regular monthly session was changed from Wednesday to Monday and the hour for winter set at 7 o'clock.

The plat of Mrs. Martha Peters' "Mechanics addition," consisting of 13 lots, north of the railroad and east of the new Huber shops, was presented and accepted.

The plat of 18 lots in Jacob Hecker's addition, located west of Windsor street, was also accepted.

A resolution was passed fixing a common datum at the granite corner stone in the court house, for surveying street grades.

Resolutions were passed fixing street, curb and sidewalk grade and width of road way for south Main street, south East street and Delaware avenue.

GAINED A COMPLETE VICTORY

The Quo Warranto Proceedings Against the Scioto Water Company Dismissed.

Last week the quo warranto proceedings to arrest the charter of the Scioto Water company was heard in circuit court in this city, first on a demurrer which was sustained and plaintiffs ordered to file an amended petition. The amended document was duly filed and the case argued on Friday. The court then announced that it would render its decision at the Upper Sandusky session on Friday of this week and did so. The decision was delivered by Judge Beer and sustains the demurrer and dismissed the proceedings, giving the Scioto Water company a complete victory.

The plaintiffs excepted to the court's decision and may take the case to the supreme court. Mr. Bullock being unable to build the Marion waterworks wants no one else to build them.

Died While Milking.

(Upper Sandusky Union.)

Mr. George B. Harness, of Marseilles township, called at this office Tuesday and communicated the startling intelligence that a widow lady residing near Marseilles had been found dead during the forenoon of that day. Mrs. Lafferty was the woman's name, she being the widow of the late John Lafferty, and resided by herself on a small farm a short distance west of Marseilles. When found the lifeless body was resting upon a wooden pail partially filled with milk. The outward indications were that she had been dead several hours. The cause of death is shrouded in mystery, but by many is attributed to heart disease. The theory is that she was engaged in milking when attacked by the fatal malady. Some neighbors found the body and it is supposed that death occurred the evening before, the condition of the cow which she was milking indicating as much. The milk, too, in the bucket proved that it had stood for a number of hours. The deceased was well known in the community where she lived and her sudden and peculiar death has created general sorrow.

In Memoriam.

SMITH.—Ina Louisa, daughter of F. D. and Alice A. Smith, was born August 21st and died September 13th, aged 3 weeks and 2 days.

Our lamb in His arms the Good Shepherd has taken,
And up to the pasture of heaven has borne her.
By the side of Life's river from sleep she'll awaken,
While the angels with beauty immortal adorn her.
We'll follow the pathway the Good Shepherd goeth,
We'll seek for our baby in Eden's bright bowers,
Not knowing we'll trust Him-believing He knoweth,
And will tenderly care for His angel and ours.

A Laudable Enterprise.

The caption refers to the elegant jewelry store, lately established on north Main street, by Granville Ryder. He has this week added two more fine show cases to his already well furnished store, making it now by far the handsomest and most elegantly equipped establishment of the kind in this section of the country. If you will call and examine his stock you will see that he has more goods and of finer quality than the other stores in Marion combined.

HOUSES OF SUGAR.

Claus Spreckels' New Idea and What Different Ones Think of It.

The scheme of utilizing sugar for building purposes in place of marble, which the redoubtable Claus Spreckels declares to be feasible, has stirred up lots of interest among the sugar men as well as stone cutters.

Spreckels says his sugar experts were asked to find a means for hardening the sugar he shipped to Mexico, and they did so. It had become necessary to get a process of this kind, as the sugars dissolved and washed considerably while en route there.

The success of the new process made him think the crystals could be hardened for building purposes and made to withstand heat and water.

It has been demonstrated to his satisfaction, he declares, that the thing can be done. The tests already made show that sugar blocks for interior decoration could even now be furnished. Great blocks for the exterior of buildings, he thinks, will be eventually, and he predicts that the proposed new wing of the White House in Washington will be of that material.

A reporter talked with a lot of the trust people the other day about the new discovery. They had consulted with their experts about it, and all were at a loss to conceive of a method which might effect the desired result.

No matter how hard sugar was made water would dissolve it, and it would melt under nominal heat. There was no comparison between sugar and marble. They were composed of entirely different elements. Marble, carbonic acid and lime, which form into a compound of carbonate of lime. Water has no effect on this substance, and it would take ten minutes of a white heat temperature to disintegrate it, the experts said.

Sugar is composed of oxygen, hydrogen and carbon, a compound substance that heat, water or shock readily drives back into its elements, and no chemical substance can preserve its integrity, the sugar men conclude, and rest contented.

Of a similar opinion is Dr. Gideon F. Moore, the eminent chemist, who is constantly called upon to make sugar tests. But he does not say that a process generally unknown to science at present may not have been discovered.

He showed the reporter a block of sugar about an inch square in thickness. It was perfectly transparent. It looked hard, but could be easily cut with a knife or bitten.

"There is the natural formation of sugar crystals," the doctor explained. "The sugar is in the same state now as it was when pulverized. Just taste it; you will see it is as sweet as ever.

"Pressure could not solidify crystals more than they are now, and I know of no chemical preparation that could possibly do it.

"If a way of making sugar harder than this has been found it is something new in chemistry, and if the blocks can be made insensible to water or nominal heat the discovery is wonderful."

The statement that Spreckels made about the new building sugar, putting marble completely in the shade, because of its superior beauty, no one who studies each specimen under a magnifying instrument will doubt.

The sugar is like a rainbow, excepting that each crystal represents an irregular block.

If finely cut as marble is, a block of sugar might reflect every ray of light making it glisten like a diamond.

There can be no question about its beauteous effects, and if it can be prepared at all, it can be gotten up much cheaper than marble.

The only difficulty to be overcome is the natural disposition of the sweet stuff to melt. The trouble now is that sugar is sugar whether soft or hard, and a piece from the corner stone of a sugar house would taste just as good to the small boy as if it were stolen from a bowl.—New York News.

Home at Last.

The old darky, an account of whose trip from Louisiana to Georgia was published in The Eagle some time ago, found his young bosses at last. He belonged to Mr. Tillman, of Tatnall, and was sold as a slave long before the war and taken to Louisiana. As the shadows of old age began to gather around him, his heart yearned for his childhood's home, and so last spring the old fellow, with his wife and children, traveled all the way back in a horse and cart. He had got to Tatnall, but found that his old bosses had gone the way of all mankind, and Mr. Joseph Tillman, one of his young bosses, with that feeling that every southerner has for the good old time darky, brought the old fellow to his home in Bulloch, gave him a house and land to tend, where, with his young bosses to help him, he hopes to spend the remainder of his days in peace and contentment.—Statesboro (Ga.) Eagle.

How Florida Girls Capture Clams.

One day last week four young ladies stopping at Cobb Park went up one of the creeks after clams. They were rather late, and the tide was rising rapidly when they reached the clam banks. Not to be outdone, they hunted the desired clams by feeling for them with their feet, until the tide rose so high that they were in water up to their necks. When a clam was sounded a dive followed, and the clam was landed in the boat. Sixty-two clams were the result, and the chowder pot was large and well filled.—Savannah News.

"Throw physic to the dogs."
—Shakespeare or Bacon?

INVIGORATING and appetizing if taken cold before eating in the morning. It tones up the system, settles a disordered stomach. A gentle, but sure cathartic. If a matitudinal cocktail must be indulged in, it will counteract its bad effects as to stomach and brain. An absolute and sure preventitive of sea sickness. Its components are closely allied to the gastric juices of the stomach.

An Antidote to Intoxicants.

IF taken regularly, fresh and cold, three times a day, before each meal, it will put the stomach in such a shape that the necessity for stimulants will not be felt, and excessive desire can be toned down to simple moderation. I shall keep Clam Juice constantly on hand to be served FREE, hot or cold, to my customers. Knowing positively from experience that it will do all that is claimed for it above, I will try in every way to promote its use, as it is not my wish to encourage excessive drinking, and if I can discourage it by giving away freely the only known antidote I will only be too glad to do so.

MANY persons are under the impression that Ivory Soap is expensive, and intended for the use of the wealthy only. The fact is, the price is lower than for ordinary soaps, quality considered, for in the "Ivory" no "cheapeners" or "makeweights" are used, so the buyer gets all "true soap" for her money. Its harmlessness, durability and efficiency admit of its being used for all purposes with equal satisfaction and economy in the families of the rich or poor.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

ELECTRICITY VERSUS HAYSEED.

Dry Baptist Cravens and His Ride on a City Car.

"Ef I plead guilty, squire, kin I explain the circumstances?"

"The law allows you to make any statement you wish in your own defense, without pleading guilty."

"Thank ye. Well, squire, I'm Nahum Cravens to home, an' I hev bin a township trustee for nigh on to seven year. I'm a Dry Baptist, too, squire."

"You are charged with disorderly conduct, Mr. Cravens."

"So the gentleman down stairs sez afore I come up. 'Twas this a-way, squire: I wanted ter see them things an' animals at the Bloo or Zoo place, an' a policeman told me take a red car at Fifth and the postoffice. I sees a car a-standing' thar without no mules or hosses to it, an' I sez:

"'Be this the garden's car?'

"'Yes, sir; step aboard.'

"'Whar's your hosses, friend?' sez I, thinkin' I should have ter wait.

"'Don't have horses,' sez the feller in blue clothes.

"'Mules, I reckon?' sez I, thinkin' he was jokin'.

"'No mules neither. Hurry up; it's a-goin' to start,' sez he.

"'S'pose you work oxen on this line, eh?' sez I, because I was gittin' riled.

"'No, you old jay, we ain't got no oxen,' sez he, snappish like. 'You've got one second to get on.'

"I got aboard, squire, an' had hardly time to look about when the consarned thing gave a jump an' went aflyin' along. By Jude, I didn't know what ter think. Whiz-z-z! whirr! ding-ding! I staggers out an' sez to the feller:

"'For land's sake, how do she go?'

"'Electricity,' sez he.

"'Whar is it?' sez I.

"'Up on the hill,' sez he.

"'How on airth does she get down hyar?' sez I.

"'Oh, rats! Go set down!' sez he.

"Just then I ketched sight of a pole reachin' up from the top of the car to a clothes line stretched along, and I sees into the trick. They were pullin' the dinged thing along with a steam windlass. Then sez I: 'Young man, I'm Nahum Cravens, a township trustee for seven year, an' I don't allow no city whippersnapper to fool with me, an'"——

"Mr. Cravens, I know the rest. You fought like a pugilist and howled 'Murder!' You are behind the march of civilization, and I'm afraid hopelessly so. Pay the man with the large diamond here $12, and go home and cultivate cabbages. Next!"

When the township trustee called on the old soldier for his valise and umbrella afterward that battle scarred patriot offered the following sage suggestion:

"Mr. Cravens, don't be surprised at anything nowadays. These electrickers are just raisin' jesse. Between me an' you, Mister Cravens, it wouldn't surprise me a bit to wake up some morning an' find a whizzgig lockin' up people in the cells I've been attendin' to for nine year last Thanksgiving. Give my compliments to Missus Cravens an' the family. Good-by, sir; good-by."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

My Pretty Typewriter.

My office of late has seemed brighter,
More cheerful by far than it was;
It may be the pretty typewriter
Who sits near my desk is the cause

A radiant, dashing young creature;
In typewriting circles a belle;
Although I'm unable to teach her
To punctuate rightly or spell.

Her mouth like a half opened rose is,
Her hair rivals gold in its hue,
Tip tilted her dear little nose is,
Her eyes are a heavenly blue

I really should feel lost without her;
For while there's no cause for alarm,
There's something attractive about her;
A thrilling, intangible charm

Her typewritten letters are fearful,
With errors they thickly are strewed;
I scold her, and she becomes tearful,
And thinks I am awfully rude

She breaks into silvery laughter
As soon as forgiven, and I've
Rewritten no end of them after
She's gone—she leaves promptly at five.

My wife, who is somewhat suspicious,
Dropped into my office today,
And found—well, I thought it judicious
To send my typewriter away

I really shall feel lost without her,
For while I intended no harm,
My wife noticed something about her
That filled her dear soul with alarm

What the Other Girl Gets.

One of Denver's leading and wealthiest citizens has just built an elegant residence on Capitol Hill. It is intended as a wedding present to a daughter who is to be married soon. The gentleman also owns two lots adjoining those upon which the house is erected. The younger daughter of the gentleman, upon being spoken to about the fine present her sister would receive, remarked:

"Yes, and we are going to put a sign on the two adjoining lots with these words on it: 'These lots go with the other girl.'"—Denver Times.

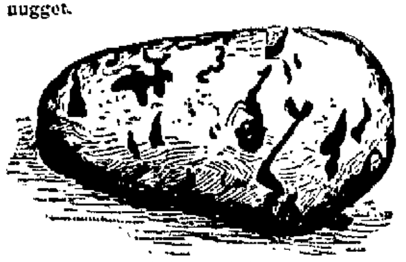
SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

THINGS SAID AND DONE IN THE WORLD OF TODAY.

Attention Is Called to a Large Gold Nugget Found in France—Other Lumps of Gold Have Since Been Picked Up in the Same Region.

In a recent issue of Popular Science News appeared a fac-simile of a French gold nugget found by a peasant in the department of Ardeche. Following is a reprint of the illustration, together with a description of this nugget.



A FRENCH GOLD NUGGET.

The nugget consists of 98 per cent. pure gold, is about 3.8 inches in length, and weighs something over one pound, which would make its actual value about $300, although as a mineralogical curiosity it is doubtless worth much more. Its shape has been described as resembling a "crushed potato," and the illustration shows that the comparison is an apt one.

Since the discovery of this nugget has been made public it has been learned that in past years several other lumps of gold have been picked up in the same region by the inhabitants, all of which, however, were much smaller, and were not preserved, but sold to the local jewelers and at once melted up. The country in which the gold has been found is mountainous, and contains numerous veins of pyrites, argentiferous galena, and many other minerals. The principal formation appears to be a mica schist, called by the natives bleste. The authority quoted regards the occurrence of such a large nugget as the one described to be quite remarkable, and liable to lead to the discovery of gold deposits that will add materially to the wealth of France.

Penny-in-the-Slot Lamp.

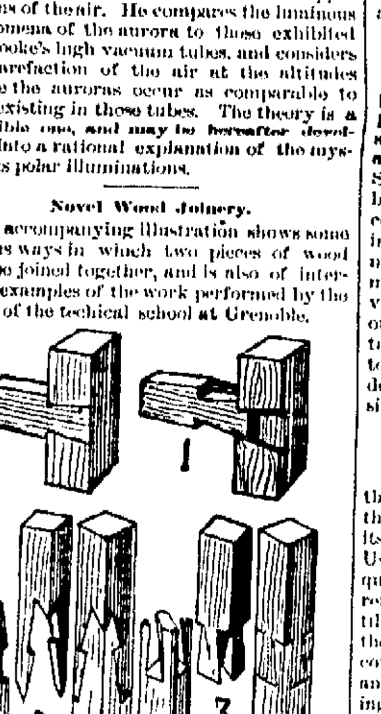
The latest and most ingenious application of the penny-in-the-slot automatic apparatus is the adaptation of this principle to the supply of electric light in the shape of reading lamps for railway carriages, omnibuses, tram cars, etc. The lamp in question has been patented by an English firm. The lamp, as originally patented, consists of a clockwork apparatus contained in a box five inches by five inches and three inches. And by introducing a penny into the top of the machine, and subsequently pressing a knob, the mechanism is set in motion and an electric light obtained, which, after burning for half an hour, is automatically extinguished. The lamp can, moreover, be extinguished at will by pressing a second knob.

The Cause of Auroras.

Professor Dolbear, in a communication to Science, suggests a new explanation of the cause of auroras, holding it to be due to changes in the magnetic field of the earth, which is considered as a great magnet, instead of to electrical currents in the upper regions of the air. He compares the luminous phenomena of the aurora to those exhibited in Crooke's high vacuum tubes, and considers the rarefaction of the air at the altitudes where the auroras occur as comparable to that existing in those tubes. The theory is a plausible one, and may be hereafter developed into a rational explanation of the mysterious polar illuminations.

Novel Wood Joinery.

The accompanying illustration shows some curious ways in which two pieces of wood may be joined together, and is also of interest as examples of the work performed by the pupils of the techical school at Grenoble.



PECULIAR WAYS OF JOINING WOOD.

The apparent impossibility of separating the joined pieces would be only equaled by the mystery of how they were ever put together but for the cut furnished by La Nature. This shows that the secret consists in so cutting them that they slide together cornerwise, and not directly, as their appearance would indicate. The upper figure shows an apparent combination of two different joints—the simple tenon and the swallow tail joint—but, in reality, it is only a double tenon.

An Aluminum Making Plant.

A Pittsburg exchange says: Few persons are aware that an aluminum making plant is now in full operation in this city. The industry was established here by the Pittsburg Testing Laboratory company, and has proved a decided success. The product is obtained by a process of which electricity is a great factor. About fifty pounds of aluminum metal are produced daily. It is worth about $4 per pound. The material is used for various purposes. It has taken the place of silver leaf in sign painting, and in that particular has proved a great success.

Value of an Egg as Food.

Professor Fresenius, of Wiesbaden, after a long series of chemical analyses, declares that an egg contains as much nourishment as a pound and an ounce of cherries, a pound and a quarter of grapes, a pound and a half of russet apples, two pounds of gooseberries and four pounds of pears; and that 114 pounds of grapes, 127 pounds of russet apples, 192 pounds of pears and 327 pounds of plums, are equal in nourishment to 100 pounds of potatoes.

To Bend a Glass Tube.

To make a bend in a glass tube without flattening, two inches of the tube should be heated to an equal temperature. This may be done by holding the glass widthwise in the flat flame of an ordinary gas burner.

A physician says that the results of the "hot water cure" are the stimulation of the stomach at first, but after repeated use a lessening of the tone of the digestive tracts, which causes congestion and dyspepsia. Hot drinks tend to lessen bronchial irritation, and may be used profitably in some cases of consumption.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.

An Effective Portiere, Inexpensive and Easily Made—Timely Recipes.

Burlap has held a certain place among materials for house decoration for several years, but never has it been so successfully used as for hangings. The coarse threads and soft color offer a good foundation for effective embroidery if desired; heavy wools and silks are used for these designs, but although material and wool are coarse, much time and patience are required to complete a pair of hangings.

Decorator and Furnisher describes a most effective portiere of burlap, both inexpensive and quickly made. The material should be cut three feet longer than the doorway, then it must be spread on the floor and firmly tacked at the corners and occasionally along the edges. It is then painted with large brushes and burnt sienna, house paint, which comes in cans, costing from twenty-five to thirty cents a can. The paint must be spread on thickly, as the burlap absorbs it in an astonishing manner. The three feet allowed to turn over at the top must be painted in the same way.

Nine inches were fringed out top and bottom; to make the fringe heavier and hang better, strands of coarse cotton rope, such as sailors use, were tied in at regular intervals. Each one of these strands was ornamented with cash, which is a Chinese brass coin answering to the American cent, and which may be bought at any of the Chinese stores for $1 a hundred. The cash has a hole in the center through which the cord was thrust and a large knot tied to hold it securely; the fringe at both top and bottom was finished in the same way.

A broad band of brown plush was placed above the fringe across the top and bottom. A row of fancy braided straw disks—otherwise Chinese table mats—was fastened through the middle of the band; from the center of each one of these disks hung a long heavy tassel made of the coarse rope, fringed out, or rather untwisted, and securely fastened on the wrong side.

Instead of the rings which are commonly used for securing the portiere to the poles, long loops of the heavy rope were used, each end finished with a tassel similar to those on the bottom. The length of three feet turned over at the top was trimmed with a narrower band of plush, smaller disks and lighter weight tassels.

As both sides of the portiere were in use the reverse side was lined with unpainted burlap and trimmed with bands of olive cloth upon which was sketched a bold design of trailing vines and flowers.

Popular Cottage Furniture.

Bamboo furniture is in high favor, and a pretty style of cottage furniture is the new bamboo, which, as Good Housekeeping tells, is not bamboo at all, but white maple. It is finished in its natural color and elaborately decorated with rods of the same, in the shape of a bamboo pole, securely bradded to the wood. Its joints, burned brown with a hot iron when the rods were in the turning lathe, make a pretty decoration and the whole forms an exceedingly pretty effect. The maple is as nearly white as a natural wood can be, with the exception of the white wood, and takes a beautiful polish. A complete set in this wood, which is very durable and handsomely finished throughout, is not an expensive purchase, and the shapes, mostly Eastlake patterns, are very graceful and pleasing. Even a writing desk is included in the set.

Delicious and Satisfying Sweetments.

Sweet apples and mellow, dead ripe pears, baked down in a mild oven till they are jellied in their own juice and sugar, make a sweetment that will keep with less care than anything else, and satisfy every taste, says Susan Power in American Garden. Line the bottom and sides of your stove oven with common bricks, laid in loosely; set the fruit in close stone jars, and let it cook all day and night. No fear of burning, but the steady, moderate heat turns out a lucid, deep flavored mass which is something what food ought to be. Boil jam fast; let this preserve take its time and don't stir it. It is an insult to a pear to preserve it any other way. The delicate looking canned pears are very insipid eating beside it.

Apple and Quince Jelly.

Quinces and apples together are usually thought to make a much pleasanter jelly than either alone, the apple being insipid by itself and the quince too strongly flavored. Use an equal weight of tart apples and quinces; wash and slice them whole, carefully removing all wormy spots. Boil the quinces till soft in just enough water to cover them; then add the apples, with sufficient water to cover, and boil the whole to a pulp. Strain and measure the juice. To each pint of boiling juice add a scant pound of sugar, which should be put into the oven to become hot before it is needed for use; cook ten minutes and turn into glasses.

Peach Preserves.

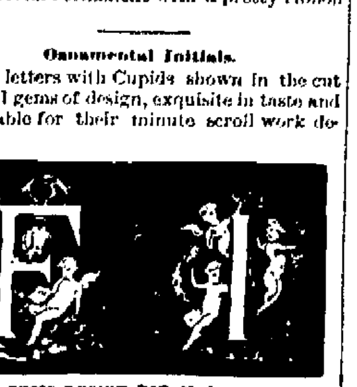
Miss Parloa tells of an easy way to remove the skins from peaches. Put them into a wire basket and plunge them into a kettle of boiling water. In two minutes take them out and the skins will come off easily. Drop the fruit into cold water to keep the color. In making preserves use to every three pounds of fruit one pound of sugar, and one pint of water for three pounds of sugar. When the sirup is boiling hot take the fruit from the water and drop into it. Put but a few in at a time, as they cook very quickly. Take from the sirup with a silver fork, fill the jar and fill up with strained sirup.

An Attractive Ornament.

An ear of corn, beautiful in itself, may be utilized for decorative purposes as follows: Choose a large, well ripened ear, lift the husk from the corn without entirely removing it and pull off the silk, then braid the leaves of the husk at the top and fasten in a loop by which to hang up the ear, or a part of the leaves may be trimmed off to show some of the grain. When the ear of corn is dry paint it with liquid gold or silver, covering the whole husk and ear, and attach one of the tiny thermometers that are used for such purposes and ornament with a pretty ribbon bow.

Ornamental Initials.

The letters with Cupids shown in the cut are real gems of design, exquisite in taste and admirable for their minute scroll work details.



CUPID DESIGN FOR INITIALS.

Initials in the style of which these two are examples are especially suitable for painted texts, book illuminations and album ornamentation in water colors or pen and ink work, but may also be carried out in embroidery.

An Ounce of Prevention.

Good Housekeeping says that "mud, frequently renewed, is an excellent remedy for the bite of a dog." Huh! A rock two or three inches in diameter applied to the ear of the dog about two seconds before he tries to administer the bite is worth all the mud in the next campaign. One application, if properly made, is sufficient—especially for the dog.—Bob Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

A Problem in Dress.

She Stood Him Off.

A landlord who was before one of the circuit court commissioners the other day to see about getting a non-paying tenant out of his house explained:

"It is now five months since I got a cent of rent. Their first excuse was the death of a child. Their second the sickness of the husband. Their third his being out of work. Their fourth was that a relative had died. Their fifth was given yesterday."

"What was it?" asked the commissioner.

"Well, I called at the house and rang the bell. No answer. I then went to the side door. No answer. Then I went around to the kitchen, where I found the woman. I told her I had come to make a last demand before appealing to the law, and she insisted that I go around to the front door and ring the bell. I did so, and she opened the door, looked me over from head to foot, and said:

"Sir, if you have called to see my husband he is out."

"But you'll do just as well, madam. I have come for the rent."

"Who are you, sir?"

"Your landlord, of course."

"I can't place you, and I shall pay you no money until you are properly identified. Call with your papers some day next week."—Detroit Free Press.

Jokes 1,300 Years Old.

[From Hierocles, who flourished about the middle of the Fifth century.]

A man, hearing that a raven would live 200 years, bought one to try it.

A robust countryman, meeting a physician, ran to hide behind a wall. Being asked the cause, he replied: "It is so long since I have been sick that I am afraid to look a physician in the face."

A man wrote to a friend in Greece asking him to purchase books. From negligence or avarice he neglected to execute the commission. But, fearing that his correspondent might be offended, he exclaimed when next they met: "My dear friend, I never got the letter you wrote me about the books."

A witted, a barber and a bald headed man traveled together. Losing their way, they were forced to sleep in the open air, and to avert danger it was agreed to keep watch by turns. The lot fell first on the barber, who for amusement shaved the fool's head while he slept. He then woke him, and the fool, raising his hand to scratch his head, exclaimed: "Here's a pretty mistake! Rascal! you have waked the bald headed man instead of me."—Louisville Commercial Journal.

A Nautical Courtship.

"Oh, woe is me," cried Hannah Lee,
"No more thy love I'll scoff;
For since, my dear, you're off to sea
I've come to see you off.

"No more, in vain, coquettish slight,
I'll make you suffer pain;
For while the main rolls in its might
I'll love with might and main.

"Oh, must it be a last good-by?
Farewell, my love, farewell;
Now, by these tears which swell my eye,
I'll eye no other swell."

In quick embrace the maid is caught;
"My dear," the sailor cried,
"What care I, swells the tide or not,
So our sweet knot be tied?

"Enough! my sailor life is done,
My lot with yours I cast;
On board they'd lash me to the mast,
You mash me to the last."

And so away this couple ran,
Held fast in Cupid's grip;
And they had to ship some other man
To help them man the ship.

And so the swain, with happy grin,
Put Cupid's foes to rout,
And as the evening tide came in
A pair just tied came out

No more a surly captain daunts,
They're safe as one could wish,
And he gets sufficient for their wants
Whenever he wants to fish.

—Galion Inquirer: The Wells Fargo express company and the Erie road are at war. The express company insists upon receiving milk as freight and the railway claims the right to receive milk or cream for shipment on the special milk trains. The Erie issued orders to its station agents not to receive milk for the express company, and the express company issued like orders to its agents. As the express and station agents are generally the same individual, the railroads have so far been obeyed.
